

ABSTRACT

A method for producing a film with through-holes includes using an apparatus having a pair of stretching rollers which sandwich a film therebetween and stretch the film. The producing apparatus further includes a pair of punching rollers which sandwich the film therebetween and punch through-holes in the film. The stretching rollers and the punching rollers are disposed so that the film stretched by the stretching rollers are fed to the punching rollers. The method includes stretching the film by means of the stretching rollers and punching through-holes in the film.